BEEKEEPERS CAN WORK WITH FARMERS TO IMPROVE YIELDS, ENVIRONMENT

BY EVA MOORE

Dave Griggs, president of the SC Mid-State Beekeepers Association, wants to improve the perception of beekeeping among farmers in South Carolina.

“It’s not just something hippies and retirees do,” he says. “I have friends that are farmers, but farmers sometimes view beekeeping in that light.”

Griggs says there’s a misconception among some farmers that honeybees are only important to crops like cucumbers and cantaloupes for which the European honeybee is a vital pollinator.

In fact, honeybees pollinate a wide variety of crops, and can increase yields even in some crops that don’t require pollinators. What’s more, pollinators of all sorts are part of a healthy ecosystem.

The nonprofit SC Mid-State Beekeepers Association is one of several local beekeeping chapters in South Carolina. The local chapters offer educational events, including beginner beekeeping classes. There’s also a state group, the South Carolina Beekeepers Association.

But Griggs says farmers don’t have to keep bees or join an organization to benefit from local beekeepers. He urges farmers and landowners to reach out to their local beekeeping organization if they’d like to have hives placed near their fields, or simply if they have questions about bees. Organizations can also connect people with beekeepers who will remove swarms from their property.

And it’s important for farmers to communicate with area beekeepers about pesticide application schedules to keep bees healthy.

“We have members all over. If there’s a farmer who says, ‘I’d like someone to put hives on my property,’ or ‘I want to meet with someone,’ we’ll do that. We want to raise awareness of bees,” he says.

For information about the SC Mid-State Beekeepers Association, visit scmidstatebeekeepers.org.

There are 29 other local beekeeping associations representing areas across the Palmetto State. To find local chapters in South Carolina, visit the South Carolina Beekeepers Association website at scstatebeekeepers.com.

Those interested in beekeeping and honey regulations can also visit the Clemson Apiculture page at clemson.edu/extension/pollinators/apiculture/index.html.

NEW YEAR, NEW LEADERSHIP IN DC

Last week, the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) held its Winter Policy Conference. This event is always a good opportunity to check in on what’s happening in Washington, especially in years like this one when there’s a new administration. In fact, a lot has changed at the federal leadership level.

The Democrat-to-Republican margins in both the US House and Senate are very slim, which gives leaders across the political spectrum more incentive to work together. Agriculture issues often cut across party lines, so I’m hopeful that we can get some real work done in the next few years.

Food security is one of those issues that cuts across party lines, and ag is front and center in that conversation. During the pandemic, federal food box programs as well as South Carolina’s own Farmers to Food Banks program showed that when we direct resources toward helping hungry people, we help agribusinesses and strengthen the food system.

Climate change is one of the items talked about most often on ag policy agendas. Extreme weather and global warming affect farmers – and it’s crucial that agriculture has a voice in the conversation about climate change so we can create solutions that lift up farmers economically rather than grinding them down.

We’re already having some important conversations here in South Carolina on this topic. For instance, I’m interested to see how private-sector agricultural carbon credit models like Indigo Ag will work out in our state. There is also a company based in Charleston that focuses on capturing methane from lagoons from different types of farms.

Improving equity for minority farmers is a priority. And, of course, the Farm Bill is looming, as the current one expires in 2023.

Incoming Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack spoke to us at the closing session. It was his first speech since having been sworn in the day before.

The 2021 Policy Conference was held virtually, as so many things continue to be. Still, I was able to hear from my colleagues in various states. Many farmers in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, and neighboring states are still suffering the effects of recent power outages and terrible cold weather. I heard some disheartening stories and my prayers are with them.

I’m hoping that as the vaccine rollout continues, we’ll all be able to get back to some in-person conferences. It’s always valuable to meet folks and travel. Makes me appreciate my great home state of South Carolina even more when I return home.

Garden Open: Bulbapalooza

March 13 • 8:30 am - 3 pm

It's that special time of year when thousands of spring-flowering bulbs enliven the landscape and perennials are re-emerging after a winter's rest. Shake off the winter doldrums, and come see what the color of daffodils, tulips, hyacinth and allium does to brighten up the garden ... and your life! Dogwoods, azaleas, redbuds and anemones and putting on quite a show, too. Free. Viewing of the garden is by self-guided walking tours only, so please dress accordingly. No registration required. We hope to see you here!

NEW STATE VET NAMED

BY CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

Michael J. Neault, DVM, has been named South Carolina's next state veterinarian and director of Clemson University Livestock-Poultry Health.

Neault comes to Clemson from the North Carolina Department of Agricultural and Consumer Services, where he has served as the state's Director of Livestock Animal Health Programs since 2015. Previously he served as Emergency Programs Manager for the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development Animal Industry Division. His work in Michigan included time as Animal Disease and Traceability Coordinator and Poultry Programs Manager.

Neault will begin in April and replace current state veterinarian and LPH director Boyd Parr upon his retirement at the end of June after 17 years at Clemson.

"Dr. Parr has been the steady and visionary leader of a regulatory agency that has been successful in helping the South Carolina animal agriculture industry navigate through natural disasters, animal diseases and countless other challenges. While he will be sorely missed, we are extremely excited that Dr. Neault has agreed to become our next state veterinarian and LPH director. He brings all the necessary experience to the job, and I have no doubt that LPH will continue its excellence under his direction," said George Askew, vice-president of Clemson Public Service and Agriculture (PSA).

As South Carolina State Veterinarian and LPH Director, Neault will lead a state regulatory agency whose mission is to protect animal health by controlling endemic, foreign and emerging diseases in livestock and poultry and to protect the health of South Carolina consumers by inspecting meat and poultry products to ensure they are safe, wholesome and accurately labeled.

"I have had the pleasure of working with Dr. Neault over the years in a number of capacities related to emergency and disease management, and I am confident LPH and South Carolina's animal agriculture industry will continue to thrive with Mike as state veterinarian and LPH director," Parr said.

As director of Livestock Animal Health Programs in North Carolina, Neault designed and administered programs that monitored and protected the state's livestock and equine industries. He also led investigations to detect and eradicate emerging animal diseases. In 2018, Neault cofounded the North Carolina Feral Hog Task Force and helped secure funding from the USDA to address feral swine issues on agricultural crops and livestock. Feral hogs are an invasive species that are a major concern for farmers and landowners throughout South Carolina and the Southeast.

Neault's agency also played a key role in protecting the North Carolina livestock and equine industries from foreign disease during the 2018 World Equestrian Games in Tryon, and in 2010 he directed Michigan's wildlife rehabilitation response to the Kalamazoo River oil spill, one of the largest inland oil spills in U.S. history.

"I am extremely honored to have been chosen as the South Carolina state veterinarian and Livestock-Poultry Health director. I have worked closely with my counterparts in South Carolina over the years and have seen firsthand that Dr. Parr has created an excellent program with capable people. I look forward to helping them continue their work protecting food safety and supporting the state's animal agriculture industry," Neault said.

During his first months on the job, Neault plans to meet with the S.C. Poultry Federation, S.C. Beef Board, S.C. Pork Board and other animal agriculture industry and livestock groups.

"Foot and mouth disease is something that we have to be looking out for and I know that the dairy industry in South Carolina is experiencing quite a few issues with financial challenges. One of our goals is to try and assist the beef industry and dairy industry to be prepared for any event that could occur and affect them," Neault said.

Clemson Livestock-Poultry Health is part of the university's Public Service and Agriculture division.

Clemson PSA is a state agency comprised of four units: Clemson Experiment Station, Clemson Cooperative Extension, Livestock Poultry Health, and Regulatory Services. Clemson PSA works collaboratively with Clemson's College of Agriculture, Forestry and Life Sciences for research and outreach through the Clemson Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service.

SCDA NOW ACCEPTING SPECIALTY CROP BLOCK GRANT APPLICATIONS

COLUMBIA – Projects that can strengthen South Carolina's specialty crop industry could be eligible for funding in 2021.

The USDA Specialty Crop Block Grant Program is committed to enhancing the market for specialty crops, which are defined as fruits, vegetables, tree nuts, dried fruits, horticulture (including honey), and nursery crops (including floriculture).

Applications for the program are available at scspecialtycropblockgrant.com and are due by 11:59 p.m. on Friday, March 19, 2021. Applications must be submitted by email to bdorton@scda.sc.gov.

Funds and guidelines are provided by the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service, with the South Carolina Department of Agriculture (SCDA) administering the program for the state.

Applicants should propose projects that provide one or more of the following benefits:

- Enhanced food safety
- Improved capacity of all entities in the specialty crop distribution chain to comply with the requirements of the Food Safety Modernization

Act, Investment in specialty crop research, including research to focus on conservation and environmental outcomes

- Development of new and improved seed varieties and specialty crops
- Enhanced pest and disease control
- Increased child and adult nutrition knowledge and consumption of specialty crops
- Increased efficiency and reduced costs of distribution systems
- Enhanced sustainability

Previous Specialty Crop Block Grants have supported the development of a weed identification website, educated consumers about the health benefits of peaches, and helped evaluate and promote cold-hardy citrus for South Carolina, among many other projects.

For more information, contact Betsy Dorton at 803-734-2210 or bdorton@scda.sc.gov.

CELEBRATE PEANUTS

BY SCDA

March is National Peanut Month – the perfect occasion for a new recipe and some peanut facts.

PEANUT COLLARD SALAD

Collards are South Carolina’s state vegetable, so it makes sense to combine these leafy greens with peanuts for a tasty, protein-packed salad during National Peanut Month. Recipe source: aboutpeanuts.com.

- 1 cup raw peanuts
- 1 cup olive oil
- 2 tsp smoked paprika
- kosher salt to taste
- black pepper to taste
- 6 tbsp apple cider vinegar
- 4 hard boiled eggs, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, smashed/minced into paste
- 8 oz. collard greens, stemmed and thinly sliced crosswise
- 1 15-oz. can black eyed peas, drained and rinsed
- 1 cup plain croutons

Heat oven to 325 degrees. Toss together peanuts, 2 tbsp olive oil, paprika, and salt on a baking sheet and bake, tossing occasionally, until golden brown, for about 15 minutes. Transfer peanuts to a rack and let cool.

Coarsely crush peanuts and divide between two bowls; set one bowl aside. To one bowl of peanuts, add remaining oil, vinegar, garlic, and shallots and whisk to combine; season with salt and pepper and set vinaigrette aside.

Using a vegetable peeler, shave carrot lengthwise into thin ribbons. Transfer to a large bowl along with collard greens, black-eyed peas, and vinaigrette. Toss to coat and season with salt and pepper. Let sit for 1 hour. Add eggs and croutons. Toss again. Serve immediately.

SOUTH CAROLINA PEANUT FACTS

- In 2020, SC grew 82,000 acres of peanuts.
- Peanuts are a superfood that naturally helps lower cholesterol. They also help reduce the risk of heart disease.
- In South Carolina, we grow two different types of peanuts: runner-type (used mostly for peanut butter and confections) and Virginia-type (used mostly for in-shell snacking).
- We have 12 peanut buying points in our state. These facilities receive, weigh, clean, dry, inspect, grade, and prepare peanuts for storage and shelling. SCDA hires and trains inspectors to grade peanuts at buying points during peanut season.

MARCH 15 LAST DAY TO COMPLETE ENROLLMENT FOR 2021 AGRICULTURE RISK COVERAGE, PRICE LOSS COVERAGE PROGRAMS

BY USDA

Agricultural producers who have not yet enrolled in the Agriculture Risk Coverage (ARC) or Price Loss Coverage (PLC) programs for 2021 must do so by March 15. Producers who have not yet signed a 2021 enrollment contract or who want to make an election change should contact their local USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) office to make an appointment. Program enrollment for 2021 is required in order to participate in the programs, but elections for the 2021 crop year are optional and otherwise remain the same as elections made for 2020.

“FSA offices have multiple programs competing for the time and attention of our staff. Because of the importance and complexities of the ARC and PLC programs, and to ensure we meet your program delivery expectations, please do not wait to start the enrollment process,” said FSA Acting Administrator Steve Peterson. “I cannot emphasize enough the need to begin the program election and enrollment process now. This process can be completed when applying for other FSA programs as well.”

ARC and PLC provide income support to farmers from substantial drops in crop prices or revenues and are vital economic safety nets for most American farms.

Although 1,033,310 contracts have been completed to date, this represents less than 59% of the more than 1.7 million contracts anticipated by the Agency. By enrolling soon, producers can beat the rush as the deadline nears.

Producers who do not complete enrollment by close of business local time on Monday, March 15 will not be enrolled in ARC or PLC for the 2021 crop year and will be ineligible to receive a payment should one trigger for an eligible crop.

ARC and PLC contracts can be emailed, faxed or physically signed and mailed back to FSA. Producers with level 2 authentication access can electronically sign contracts. Service Center staff can also work with producers to sign and securely transmit contracts electronically through two commercially available tools: Box and OneSpan. You can learn more about these solutions at farmers.gov/mydocs. Producers may also make arrangements to drop off signed contracts at the FSA county office. Please call ahead for local mailing or drop off information and options for submitting signed contracts electronically.

Producers are eligible to enroll farms with base acres for the following commodities: barley, canola, large and small chickpeas, corn, crambe, flaxseed, grain sorghum, lentils, mustard seed, oats, peanuts, dry peas, rapeseed, long grain rice, medium- and short-grain rice, safflower seed, seed cotton, sesame, soybeans, sunflower seed and wheat.

For more information on ARC and PLC including web-based decision tools, visit farmers.gov/arc-plc.

Visit farmers.gov/service-center-locator to find location and contact information for the nearest FSA county office.

NOMINATIONS SOUGHT FOR 2020 S.C. ENVIRONMENTAL AWARENESS AWARD

BY SCDNR

The state of South Carolina is seeking nominations for an award to recognize individuals who are doing extraordinary work for the natural environment. Nominations for the 2020 S.C. Environmental Awareness Award will be accepted through March 31, 2021.

The South Carolina General Assembly established the award in 1992 to recognize outstanding contributions made toward the protection, conservation, and improvement of South Carolina’s natural resources.

Each year the public is invited to submit nominations that are then reviewed by an awards committee that includes representatives from the state’s natural resource agencies. In judging nominees, the committee considers excellence in innovation and leadership, as well as accomplishments that influence positive changes affecting the natural environment.

Members of the awards committee represent the S.C. Forestry Commission, S.C. Department of Health and Environmental Control, S. C. Department of Natural Resources (SCDNR), and the S.C. Sea Grant Consortium.

The nomination guidelines, nomination form, and a list of previous award winners are available on the SCDNR website at dnr.sc.gov/admin/foia/envIRONawad.html or by calling Bill Marshall with SCDNR at (803) 331-2608.

Last year’s winner of the S.C. Environmental Awareness Award was Dr. Gloria Sanders McCutcheon, Chair and Professor of Biology at Claflin University and Emerita Professor at Clemson University. As a scientist, author, teacher and community worker, McCutcheon has been recognized as a trailblazer in the protection of natural resources and public health. Her research and work as an entomologist has advanced the practices of integrated pest management and sustainable agriculture. Dr. McCutcheon is also recognized for her mentoring of students in science and directing many graduates who are now making contributions to sustainable agriculture around the world.
